FROM OUR RABBI

The new month of June will also bring the new Jewish month of Tamuz. The 17th of Tamuz falls this year on July 3 and I want to remind you about this fast day.

Eight years ago when I arrived to Congregation Ahavath Sholom I knew that the first goal to be accomplished was to start a process of healing. That process was necessary again almost one year later when another argument divided the Congregation. We have faced, for the first time in the history of our Shul, an election with two different slates. In any case we don't have any winners or losers. The new officers have the responsibility to be the leaders for all the members, working in conjunction with all the professional staff.

Why do we fast on the 17th of Tamuz? On this day the walls of Jerusalem were breached allowing destruction of the Temple. If the Jews would have been able to repair, to close the opened parts of the wall, maybe the Temple wouldn't have been destroyed. We fast to remember that each time there is a breach in the walls of our relationships we should try to repair it immediately. In a marriage, a friendship of many years, family and even in a congregation – when something is broken in the area of the relationship, we need to try to restore it, to heal, because we have learned the only outcome is complete destruction.

We also fast to learn to make ourselves contrite. There is no room for egos or selfishness. We need humbleness, forgiveness and what in French we call grandeur.

Let us all learn from the month of Tamuz this lesson, to continue to build and shape the Jewish future of our Shul. Let's do it for us as well as for our children.

May HaShem give us the wisdom, the courage and a good neshumah to make it come true.

With blessings,

Rabbi Alberto (Baruch) Zeilicovich

FROM OUR PRESIDENTS

What a year! I have experienced so many personal highs and lows. I have been so proud to be a part of the leadership of your Shul and never realized what a daunting task it was to run a synagogue.

Without a doubt, it has been an emotional and difficult year for CAS. I came into the office of President with high hopes of being a healing force. I thought I could bridge the widening divide in our Congregation. I want to thank you, the members, for allowing me the opportunity to try.

In this, my last president's column, I want to focus on the highlights. We have had so many successes. As with other organizations, the good that gets done is the direct result of strong volunteers who are willing to do what it takes to make it happen. So, what have we accomplished and what am I most proud of?

- We are in a better position financially than we have been in a long time, we have paid off debt and owe nothing on our line of credit.
- We are completing a three year audit process.
- We have more new members than we have had in recent years thanks to Pam Kuperman and her Membership Committee.
- Our "Award Winning USY Chapter" has made us all proud, thanks to Jackie Mintz, Emily Cobert, Matt Nover, and youth advisors, Kit and Joe Mintz for their outstanding leadership and commitment.
- Our Education Committee, chaired by Mona Karten and our Religious School headed by Ann Cobert, have completed another successful year.
- Our Personnel Committee, headed by Jerry Appel, has instituted processes to evaluate our employees annually.
- Our Professional Staff, thanks to our Personnel Committee and our legal counsel Morty Herman, have been issued employment contracts.
- The building and grounds look wonderful, with many improvements and new landscaping.
- We have been fortunate to receive an generous gift from the Taylor Family Foundation to establish the Thomas M. Taylor Scientific Lab .
- We have had many successful Community Events including
 - the Javier & Friends Concert attended by over 500 people (chaired by Mary Frances Antweil and Debby Rice),
 - the Mikvah Exhibit viewed at The Community Arts Center by over 2000 people (chaired by Patti Garsek),
 - a book signing event featuring Hollace Weiner and her book Lone Stars of Texas, chaired by Amy Luskey and Sherry Brown,
 - the showing of the documentary Paper Clips with special guest and speaker Sandra Roberts attended by over 300 people, chaired by Barbi Eisenman,
 - "An Afternoon in the Kitchen with Holly Clegg" attended by close to 200 people, chaired by Marcia Kurtz and Laurie Blum, and
 - Laugh Til you Plotz featuring the humorist Dr. Stephen Z. Cohen attended by over 120 people, chaired by Loretta Stone-Feinberg.
- We have had too many adult education opportunities to list however, many thanks to David Saul and Melissa Morgan for their enthusiasm and knowledge.

We have been fortunate to receive generous funding from the Jewish Federation of Fort Worth and Tarrant County for many of our programs and classes and the DD/FWHDS Supporting Foundation. CAS is blessed to be part of such a wonderful community.

In closing, I would like to say thank you again for the opportunity. I hope you will join me in praying for and working towards peace.

Susan Luskey
Out-Going President

Fellow Congregants,

WOW!

As I assume the role as your new president, I have to look forward instead of the "rear view mirror," as was so well put by YOUR new Third Vice President, David Nudleman.

The number of people at the Annual Meeting was unprecedented. I can only hope this level of participation and interest continues in whatever way you are comfortable in utilizing YOUR Shul services, i.e., religious services, educational, political, volunteer, social, etc.

I need and want your input, your recommendations and suggestions and committee participation. Let me know of your interests.

Your new access to the president now and in the future is: caspresident@aol.com. My personal phone numbers are also in the Shul directory, B'nai B'rith directory and the White Pages.

Be advised your new officers met last night, June 5, 2007, to discuss goals, approaches, learn about issues we have not been totally involved in and discuss which of these issues were hotter than others, and get recommendations as to involvement of all our congregants. Lester Kuperman, Ben Herman and Carol Schwartz attended and helped immensely through their past experiences and expertise. It's a start!

I probably won't do everything right or according to everyone's wishes but I do promise to do my best and say I don't know if I don't, and try to find the answer. Help me do this for the sake of all our children and the memory of all our parents and grandparents.

Susan, you deserve a R&R and you need it. But I feel your continued presence on this new Board will be an invaluable asset to this Congregation in the coming year.

Every day in the Amidah we say "Grant peace, well-being to the whole house of Israel, Give us Your grace, Your love and Your mercy.

Short and I hope sweet,

TISHA B'AV

When the month of Av begins, joy is decreased. We will have our special Tisha B'Av service on Monday, July 23 starting at 9:00 p.m. Please bring a flashlight. The Fast of Tisha B'Av begins at sunset on Monday, July 23 and ends on Tuesday, July 24 when 3 stars are seen in the evening.

Myth, History and Ritual

by Seth Schwartz

On the ninth and tenth days of the month of Av, 70 CE, after a four-month siege, Roman forces took Jerusalem by storm. They crushed a Jewish revolt that had erupted in the spring of 66 after a period of rioting and strife instigated by the incompetence and greed of Roman administrators and the zeal of Jewish extremists.

The immediate consequences were severe. According to Josephus (38 - c100 CE), the historian who briefly participated in the revolt before defecting to the Romans, 1.1 million Jews died in the siege and its aftermath; 97,000 were enslaved. The Temple, one of the largest structures in the Roman Empire, a building that had made Jerusalem and the Jews famous, was destroyed. Roman troops razed what was left of the city. Palestine was formally annexed to the Roman Empire. Its inhabitants were subjected to Roman law and deprived of the autonomy they had enjoyed with few interruptions since 539 BCE.

Jews now faced the task of making sense of the calamity. Many were hampered by the belief that the sacrificial worship practiced in the Temple played a crucial role in maintaining G-d's good will toward Israel. Some decided that G-d had failed to protect His people and His holy place -- that the covenant between G-d and Israel was abrogated. Books written soon after the destruction inform us that some educated Jews, like Josephus, some early rabbinic figures and the author of an apocalyptic book known as IV Ezra, tried to defend G-d and Judaism, while others came to different conclusions. Although the reactions of the majority of the Jews -- the uneducated and illiterate -- are not accessible to us, we have some idea of how mass death, destruction and dislocation affect people's behavior and beliefs. Lives were irreparably disrupted. For some, the prosperity and success of Rome, the evident power of its gods and the attractiveness of its cultural norms only heightened the sense of Judaism's failure. This situation can be compared to the disintegration of the Judaism of the shtetl when mass immigration from eastern Europe brought it to the United States a century ago.

But perhaps more important than our understanding of the tragedy in its immediate aftermath is what it came to symbolize within the context of Jewish history.

For several centuries after the destruction, Judaism did indeed disintegrate, its fragments preserved mainly by small and powerless groups of rabbis. But time passed. Rome faltered and then became Christian, and the unassimilable fact of the destruction began to be tamed by the artifices of memory, narrative and ritual commemoration.

The rabbis themselves began to record and compile stories about the destruction. Their goal was to incorporate the tragedy into the standard biblical cycle of sin-punishment-repentance-restoration. The rabbis internalized what was earlier understood to be G-d's guilt, weakness and loss of interest in the Jews and then transformed it into their own. The end of the sacrificial cult interfered with their ability to control the cosmos and atone for their sins. Consequently, the world was plunged into chaos and they were plunged into a period of sinfulness and punishment that could only be purged through repentance. So paradoxically, the response to the receding catastrophe was not abandonment of Torah and Judaism but embrace of it.

And the rabbis were able to perpetuate their own foundation myth: On the eve of Jerusalem's destruction, Rabban Yohanan ben Zakkai escaped from the city and presented himself to the Roman general Vespasian, whom he greeted as "Emperor." The general, in gratitude for this treasonous flattery, allowed the rabbi to establish at Yavneh a new center of Torah study where Yohanan and his associates went on to create a new Judaism, adapted to a world in which the Jews were scattered and sacrifice was abolished.

Through these rabbis, a cataclysmic event became imbued with religious and cultural meaning. The ritual memorialization of this second destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple was connected with the first, which had occurred in 586 BCE when Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, destroyed Jerusalem; and with other historical catastrophes, such as the expulsion from Spain in 1492. Tisha b'Av became a repository of Jewish tragedy throughout the ages.

Tisha b'Av is a day of mourning, but it also has a penitential character, revealed by the very fact of fasting. And it looks forward hopefully to restoration. The reading of the Book of Lamentations concludes not with its final verse but with the penultimate one: "Cause us to return to You, L-rd, and we will return; renew our days as of old." Furthermore, the period of mourning which culminates in Tisha B'Av is followed by a period of consolation, the penitential period of the High Holy Days and finally, the rejoicing of Sukkot, reproducing the annual cycle of communal ritual, sin-punishment-repentance-restoration, into which the rabbis strove to incorporate the destruction.

The modern parallel to the destruction of the Temple is the Holocaust. But unlike the destruction of 70 CE, the Jewish world that the Holocaust affected was diffuse and decentralized. The ability of those of us who live in its aftermath to make sense of it is helped precisely by our typically modern conviction that catastrophes often fail to make sense. Still, the impulse to incorporate the Holocaust into some master narrative remains powerful.

We, too, will need to tame the Holocaust, but it may take many more decades; ritualized communal memory depends above all on forgetfulness. Only dimly remembered horrors can be reduced to meaning. What, in the meantime, should we think of Yom Hashoah, that problematic holiday we have created to commemorate this modern catastrophe? What sort of meaning do we endeavor to impose on events with this holiday and its neighbor, Yom Ha'atzmaut? The ancient rabbis probably did not consider their story of Yavneh to have provided a happy ending to the destruction, yet some historically conscious Jews in modern times have been inclined to do so, as if it were but a painful step in the ascent of Judaism to a higher spiritual plane. Similarly, some view the establishment of the State of Israel as at least mitigating the horrors of the Holocaust.

We may need to contemplate the implications of combining the Holocaust and the foundation of the State of Israel into a single story of destruction and restoration and ascribing religious meaning to this story.

Whether our modern commemorations will in the end succeed in acquiring the wealth of associations, the sense of numinous unspecificity, which already characterizes Tisha B'Av, and indeed all successful commemorative rituals, remains to be seen.

There is no better way . . . Act Now to Receive Your Plaque(s) by the High Holidays!

Two hundred years from now, someone will be here to turn on the Yahrzeit lights for our loved ones - making sure that those dearest to us will never be forgotten.

Remembering our loved ones by purchasing a Yahrzeit plaque, having their name inscribed in the Golden Book and/or placing a leaf in their memory on the Memorial Tree is truly an everlasting memorial.

The bronze Yahrzeit tablet is

Inscription in the Golden Book is $350.

Memorial Tree Leaf is

$1,500.

Ultimately, only by our actions will our children know the importance of tradition. And then, we too, will never be forgotten.

Also, for those of us who want to commemorate a special birthday or wedding anniversary we have:

Leaves on the Tree of Life are $1,000 each;

and/or

Educational Endowment plaques are various denominations starting at $250.

Act now to ensure your loved ones name is in the Pesach Yizkor Book.

We also have a way for you to memorialize a non-Jewish loved one.

Plaques on this board are $350.

Kiddush Luncheons

Our Kiddush luncheon following services each Saturday is a time when we can sit down together and share our lives over some good kosher food. Rabbi Zeilicovich established the "sit-down" Kiddush each week when he first came to Ahavath Sholom 7½ years ago and it has become both a community and social event.

We are fortunate to have Maria Loya, our caterer, who goes out of her way to design a beautiful, tasty Kiddush Luncheon every week. We are also fortunate to have a dedicated group of volunteers, led by Elsie Blum, who work each week on the luncheon as well as endless hours on special events. Graciela Zeilicovich, our rebbitzin, spends many hours here, ensuring the kashrut of our kitchens. This is home cooking that can't be beat - even in Dallas. We sincerely thank them all. We also want to thank all of you who have volunteered to clean up after the luncheons. You have helped to make this department succeed.

How can we even begin to thank all of the sponsors throughout the years? Thank you for celebrating your birthdays and anniversaries with the Shul family. Thank you for letting us be here as your son or daughter became an adult. Thank you for allowing us to celebrate the newest generation of your family. Thank you for allowing us to remember your dearly loved and dearly missed family member.

If you would like to take part in this mitzvah, please contact Elsie Blum (817) 731-4721. Co-sponsorships are $100.

Uncle Shlomo Needs YOU!

For what you ask? To join the ranks of a vibrant Veterans organization in our community and across the country.

Martin Hochster, Jewish War Veterans, Post 755 would like to add you to it's roster to work with us in our ongoing important community veteran and Jewish activities. We've been in business for over twelve years doing just that. We have an active program planned for this year and would like to have you as part of it.

Anyone who has served in the military in some capacity - active, reserve or guard - whether in combat or not, is welcome. In addition, we have numerous non-veterans in our group who have joined our associate program.
