CAS takes lifelong learning seriously and with much joy. Come join the fun for all from preschoolers to High Schoolers with the Learning & Engagement Center on Sundays and for adults with Rabbi Bloom on Tuesdays at 10:30 am and again on Tuesdays at 6:30 pm.

Confirmation Classes explore the questions of "Who am I?" "Where do I fit in?" "What should I do with my life?"

Not bad topics for adults, too. Come meet with the Rabbi to explore current topics and what the Torah might have to say about how we as adults could lead our lives. See you soon!

Shalom Kehilah,

Kislev is the ninth month on the Jewish calendar, counting from the month of Nisan. It is best known for the holiday of Chanukah, which begins on the 25th day of Kislev.

The message of Chanukah is the eternal power of light over darkness and freedom over tyranny.

For us at the LEC, it came and went in a flash as Kislev was a month full of activities, light, candles, clay dreidels, plastic dreidels, chocolate gelt, sweets and treats, singing, and Sufganiyot.

Our mission at the LEC is to create a place for our students to explore Judaism and their Jewish identity through our curriculum with our talented educators' creative spirits.

This December, our students enjoyed an unconventional Chanukah challenge:

The students learned all about Chanukah as their focused curriculum topic on the first week of December, in their respective classes and then, this last week, LEC held a truly fun challenge competition: "The Chanukah Amazing Race"!

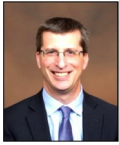

Based on the TV show "The Amazing Race", teams had to complete physical and knowledge-based challenges related to Chanukah in a giant race to the final checkpoint.

We finished our Chanukah party by lighting the candles in the Chanukiah (for educational purposes), sang Chanukah songs, awarded prizes to the winning teams and the best part: We all enjoyed eating Sufganiyot (jelly donuts).

For our youngest group we had a special program from the PJ Library. Many thanks go to Cindy Simon from Jewish Federation of Fort Worth & Tarrant County for a wonderful Chanukah activity with stories, songs and an edible Chanukiah.

I wish you, your family, and your loved ones near and far
A Happy New Year, a blessed secular 2023.

Beh'Shalom!

New Year Resolutions:

Dear Friends,

The American New Year is here, and while as Jews we don't celebrate January 1 as our New Year, this time of year does make me think about life. I get caught up thinking about the "New Year's vows" that people make every year and about their "new beginnings." My question to those who do make vows is why are vows made? Do people intend to keep them, or have the vows simply become part of their New Year's celebrations, like the drinking of champagne, the first kiss, the signing of "Auld Lang Syne"? If so, then what good are these vows?

In Judaism vows or promises or nedrim are taken much more seriously than those we make on New Year's Eve. For example, in the first book of Samuel, chapter one verse eleven, we read about Hanna who was childless and desperately wanted a child. Hanna's prayer and vow to the Lord reads: "And she vowed a vow, and said, O Lord of hosts, if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thy handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thy handmaid, but wilt give to thy handmaid a man child, then I will give him to the Lord all the days of his life...." Later in the story, even though it must have been terribly hard for Hanna to let go of her son, she sent him to serve God by serving the high priest Eli. In the end we know that Samuel became the last great prophet.

As we see, a neder is something that is very hard to break, even when the promise itself is very painful. A person can only be relieved of his/her vow or promise by way of a special religious ceremony requiring a religious authority such as a rabbi. This fact is the reason that many religious Jews, when asked a question, answer by saying "bli neder" (literally translated "without a vow"). In other words, I hope, but I don't want to promise.

Which system is better -- the New Year's vows which cause those who make them to consider change if only for a fleeting moment, but does not necessarily result in action, or the Jewish neder, which demands both thought and action? Would people who make New Year's vows, even under the influence of New Year's cheer, make them if they knew that they would be held to them?

Think what the consequences could be. I believe that even the best, brightest, and most dedicated individuals would be fearful of not living up to their word. For example, do you think that any high-priced ballplayers would agree to be paid their multi-million dollar salaries contingent upon how well they play during the upcoming year? Would Met outfielder Carlos Beltran have been willing to pro-rate his contract on the promise or vow to hit a certain number of homeruns and advance runners in scoring position? If so, after last year's disaster of a season, he would have lost a large part of his $20 million salary (that being ridiculous in and of itself).

If keeping promises is so difficult, no matter if they are made on New Year's or any other time, one might start to ask oneself if any promise is worth making. In the end, I would say yes. Currently I am reading a very good book by Naomi Levy, called To Begin Again: The Journey Toward Comfort, Strength, and Faith in Difficult Times. Her book talks about recovery after personal loss. It discusses not only dealing with loss, but also making a promise to keep on living even when faced with great personal tragedies.

What does the promise of life entail? In essence it entails the most difficult but basic of actions: the opening of our eyes. This sounds basic, for don't we open our eyes every day? The answer to this is actually no; we don't open our eyes every day. We might physically open them, but what about spiritually? Spiritually I am not too sure. We go to synagogue, but do we really pray? We listen, but do we really learn what the words and the melodies are trying to teach us? Is the welcoming of the Sabbath Queen a sincere welcome? Are our hearts open to her? Does her beauty and the beauty of Shabbat move us? Do we even believe in the Sabbath Queen?

My answer is that we should strive to believe, we should attempt open up our minds and hearts and, most importantly, our eyes. We may see what is in front of us. We should look for the beauty of what is inside each and every one of us. Is not the beauty of our lives and our surroundings proof enough for us that there is a God? In my humble opinion it is! Therefore, I suggest to those who are thinking of making New Year's vows to rather make a neder to open our eyes to Judaism, to religiosity, to spirituality, to prayer and to our personal growth as human beings and as Jews.

Let me end with a prayer from Naomi Levy's book. "Open my eyes, God. Help me to perceive what I have ignored, to uncover what I have forsaken, to find what I have been searching for. Remind me that I don't have to journey far to discover something new, for miracles surround me, blessings and holiness abound. And You are near. Amen." I hope and pray that all of us will be able to fulfill this kind of vow and that our eyes will be opened.

B'Shalom and friendship,
Rabbi Andrew Bloom

Fort Worth Jewish Archives

DEEP IN THE HEART: ISRAEL AT 75

The FW Jewish Archives will celebrate Israel's 75th birthday with an exhibit this spring that illustrates our ties to Eretz Yisrael.

Do you have group photos from a journey to Israel -- perhaps from a Federation Mission, a Hadassah MOMentum Trip, a Youth Group visit, or Rabbi Bloom's family trip? Do you have pictures of yourself standing at some iconic spot like the Western Wall or Massada? If so, please bring them to the office and place them in the Archives mail slot. Or email your photos to the archives at archivesbethel@gmail.com. (Be sure to include the date and identify as many people in the photo as you can.)

Do you have souvenirs that show Texas' strong ties to Israel --- like the T-shirt pictured on this page? If so please loan them to the Shul for the exhibit.

Welcome, we are into the New Year and our Synagogue continues to evolve!

Last year brought changes in both Clergy and professional staff here at the Shul. We feel lucky that we found Coleman Shickman to help us fill the void left by the Hazzan. We are hoping to continue with Coleman for the foreseeable future. He brings a youthful exuberance to our services and provides great new interpretations and tunes of many familiar prayers. Please come to services on a Friday for Kabbalat Shabbat services at 6:00 p.m. and on Saturday for Shabbat services at 9:30 a.m. and following this service with our wonderful Kiddush Lunches!

We would also like to introduce to you our new Administrator Angyl McCool. She has started and is learning many new procedures, tasks, and duties. Let's all welcome Angyl with our friendly Shul attitudes and let her know we are all glad to have her here as part of our congregational family.

I also want to assure each of you that the safety of our congregants is of the upmost importance. Our Board of Directors continues to meet and review our security procedures and processes. We are in conversations with authorities and the SCN, (Secure Community Network), to continue work with security professionals to follow a plan for safety solutions to address current deficiencies. With this said we continue to ask our congregants to help us out by volunteering to come to services both Friday or Saturday and help with the Fort Worth off-duty police officer at the front doors. This helps us work together with the police officer and identify congregants or guests that are showing up to the different services we provide the community. This is a very essential and important Mitzvah that requires little time but provides us another layer of security in our house of worship. Members can sign up with the office during weekdays to be able for us to make sure we have coverage for our different services.

On another note, the Learning and Engagement Center has continued to keep our LEC Sunday School vibrant and full of activities. We are so proud of our LEC principal, Fani Kiselstein, and our great teachers for all their time and energy. Also, the great job they have done to keep the curriculum interesting and engaging for the kids is working well and we are growing. You can help by bringing your own personal interests, like cooking, needlework, wood working, gardening, or anything else, to help teach the kids your skills through volunteering for special programs. Just contact Fani and she will be glad to speak with you about the "hands on" approach to working with the students.

Our Catering Committee team headed by Rhonda Krupp has out done themselves with their continued love and support for our Shul and almost every activity going on within the walls here at our building. Please thank all of these wonderful volunteers the next time you see them for the hours and hours of work they are helping provide CAS. We are truly lucky to have this committee, they work every week to provide a wonderful Kiddish Lunch for our members. They also work with all our community to help in any way they can to help with the food for many different types of events.

We are always looking for community volunteers to help with many projects that need people to keep our synagogue and grounds looking great and our building neat and tidy. Let us remember that it "Takes A Village" and our village is CAS!! With each member's help we can all be very proud of the synagogue environment we help create with warm hearts and the inclusion of all of our members.

B'shalom,
